Decision Support for Manufacturing

Severe weather and power outages, and the aftermath of these events, adversely affect all aspects of manufacturing. Employees cannot get to work, supply chains are delayed, and distribution is interrupted – slowing or halting manufacturing operations and resulting in financial losses. Companies need timely accurate, facility-specific severe weather impact information and guidance in order to effectively manage business operations before, during, and after these events. StormGeo Onshore solutions help manufacturing companies prepare for and minimize the effects of severe weather events on business continuity.
